7. Research shows that most Americans now spend only approximately 4% of their time involved in outdoor activities. Research also shows that while the typical American child can identify most cartoon characters and corporate logos, they cannot identify the common trees, plants, and insects living in their own backyards. What, if any significance, do you think this research has for our future?

8. Your generation will inherit problems unlike any faced by your parents and grandparents: loss of natural landscapes, diminishing funds for education, increase in the population of citizens sixty-five years of age and older and the resulting impact of this increase on our systems of Social Security and Medicare, climate change, depletion of energy resources, ever-increasing land and resource consumption, growing urbanization, outsourcing of jobs, increases in cultural conflict, poverty, the global impact of AIDS. Now, you get the opportunity to act as a specialist. In fact, you are the expert in your field and everyone is coming to you for your opinion. First and foremost, people want you to explain why your generation has been handed so many devastating problems. Second, they want to know if you believe it will be possible for your generation to successfully confront these problems. What are your answers?

9. What behaviors do you most admire in others and what behaviors do you find most difficult to tolerate in others?

10. You are now 102 years of age. You are looking back on your life and trying to determine what, if any meaning your life has had. How will you be able to make this important determination and, when looking back, what one thing above all else will you hope to have been able to accomplish during your time on earth?

Thank you for taking the time to complete this application. We look forward to reading your responses and hope to have the opportunity to meet you in person very soon. You may forward your completed application to us via email, U.S. Postal Service, or special delivery.
